Whereas, inadequate or unbalanced nutrition, known as malnutrition, is prevalent in many groups, including vulnerable populations such as hospitalized patients and minority populations, with older adults having the highest rate of malnutrition compared to other groups; and; and

Whereas, illness, injury, and malnutrition can result in the loss of lean body mass, leading to complications that impact good patient health outcomes, including recovery from surgery, illness, or disease; and

Whereas, nutrition is a human right and Social Determinant of Health, and malnutrition is exacerbated by the global COVID-19 health pandemic, which has intensified disparities, inequities, and social isolation and is further compounded by food insecurity; and

Whereas, disease-related malnutrition is a highly prevalent form of malnutrition and each day, approximately 15,000 hospital patients with malnutrition go undiagnosed; and

Whereas, malnourished patients have twice longer hospital stays compared to patients with no malnutrition and readmitted malnourished patients are twice as likely to be diagnosed with an infection; and

Whereas, the 30-day hospital readmission rate is 1.6 times higher than patients without malnutrition; and

Whereas, malnourished patients have two times higher hospital costs compared to the average cost of all hospital stays, and readmitted malnourished patients have 22% higher hospital costs than readmitted patients with no malnutrition; and

Whereas, malnourished patients have three times the mortality rate of mortality of all hospitalized patients; and

Whereas, screening, assessment, diagnosis, and intervention are key to improving malnutrition in the United States; and

Whereas, 20-30% of adults in the community are at risk or have malnutrition which leads to more complications, falls, and readmissions, and plays a role in cognitive deterioration, decreased functional capacity, and affects the quality of life.
